

DISCLAIMER & TERMS OF USE

The information on this Renaud PLLC Site is attorney advertising. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome.

Materials on this Site have been prepared for general informational purposes only. These materials do not, and are not intended to, constitute legal advice. No representation or warranty of any kind is made as to the accuracy or completeness of any material contained on this Site. Since laws change quite often and facts and circumstances directly impact advice, information on this Site may not be applicable to your situation. You should not take any action based on the information on this Site. The information provided at this Site is not privileged and does not create an attorney-client relationship with our firm or any of our lawyers. The act of sending an email to us or submitting a form response or other materials through the Site, will not create an attorney-client relationship. If you are not currently a client of Renaud PLLC, your e-mail will not be privileged and may be disclosed to third persons. Communication by email may not be secure and its use for transmitting confidential information should be avoided unless adequately encrypted. This Site occasionally includes links to other websites, including governmental agencies. These are provided as a convenience only. We assume no responsibility for computer viruses or malware resulting from the use of our Site.

IRS CIRCULAR 230 DISCLOSURE: To ensure compliance with requirements imposed by the IRS, we inform you that any U.S. federal tax content contained on this Site is not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of avoiding penalties under the Internal Revenue Code.

(5.1.2020)