

Dezerland Dioramas

Several areas throughout the auto museum have dioramas such as Main Street USA, Welcome to New York City, a Coca Cola stand, Cuba Libre, Key West, Gotham City Police Department (Batman movies), and others.

"In a nutshell a diorama can be defined as a scene that captures a moment in time. We often think of dioramas as being small in scale, but they don't necessarily have to be small scale. Sometimes dioramas are life size as in many museum dioramas.

This definition of a diorama is pretty broad and covers a lot of ground but that is the nature of a diorama. It can be almost anything as long as it captures a moment in time and displays some type of scene with multiple objects. This display of multiple objects and how they interact is the second most important aspect of a diorama because it shows us a scene.

There are many different types of dioramas but if you break it down there are two main categories: Dioramas for fun and Teaching and instructional Dioramas." <stormcastle.com>

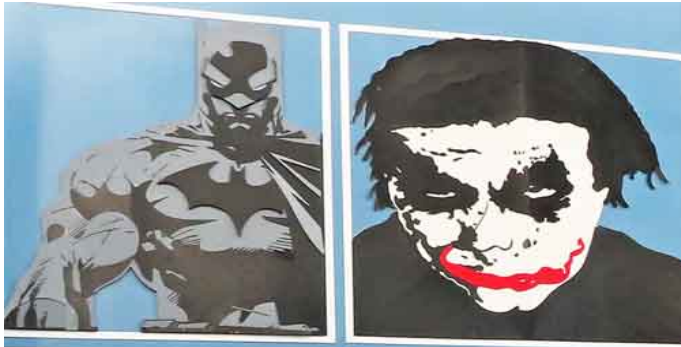

A popular diorama in both Miami and now located in Orlando is the Batman display. Some photos of the extensive Batman diorama.
